

Savarese award

The Cape Symphony & Conservatory announced the organization has selected Dorothy Savarese, president and CEO of the Cape Cod Five Cents Savings Bank, as the first recipient of the Warren Marsh Cultural Ambassador award.

The award was created to honor community leaders that have a history of recognizing the importance of artistic and cultural endeavors in the Cape community. The first Warren Marsh Cultural Ambassador award will be presented at the inaugural gala Crescendo: An Evening of Joy, benefiting the Cape Symphony & Conservatory in May.

“Dorothy’s commitment to the arts has been unwavering. She has been an avid supporter of community theater, dance, music and visual arts that enrich the lives of Cape residents,” said Cape Symphony and Conservatory COO Linda Mawhinney.

A presentation of the award will take place on May 10, during Crescendo: An Evening of Joy at Willow-bend in Mashpee beginning at 6 p.m. The event will be co-hosted by Cape Symphony Artistic Director and Conductor Jung-Ho Pak and Cape Conservatory Executive Director Stephanie Weaver.

The Cape Symphony will also perform, and the evening will include fine dining and silent and live auctions.

Serving as emcee and auctioneer for the night will be Jimmy Tingle, humorist, commentator and founder of “Humor for Humanity.”

The Warren Marsh Award for Cultural Commitment was created in recognition of long-time Cape Symphony and Conservatory board member and former Chairman, the late Warren Marsh. Marsh was a prominent supporter of the organization and played a significant role in its growth, as a board member for nearly a decade and then serving as chairman just after the merger of the Cape Symphony & Conservatory in 2010.
